

Consulting Medical Directors

Our occupational physicians set the standard.

Employers often depend on occupational physicians and allied healthcare professionals to provide medical care, monitor hazard exposure risks, and help ensure regulatory compliance. While it can be challenging to find qualified candidates, WorkCare has the solution.

Our experienced, board-certified occupational health doctors advise companies on all aspects of employee health management. Consulting physicians and other professionals on our clinical team are available for on-site and virtual engagements. They leverage their training and knowledge of applicable regulations, industry-specific standards, processes and procedures, and best medical practices to help meet the needs of our clients and their employees.

Examples of our Consulting Medical Director capabilities include:

- On-site provider oversight
- Case management reviews
- Regulatory compliance guidance
- Protocol and policy development
- Medical care and consultations

BENEFITS FOR EMPLOYERS + EMPLOYEES

WorkCare's Consulting Medical Directors provide a cost-effective alternative to recruiting and employing a company medical director or clinical supervisor. WorkCare providers offer practical guidance to corporate leaders, human resources directors, and safety professionals. Consulting MDs relate to employees and earn their trust by focusing on injury and illness prevention, early intervention, and safe return-to-work after an injury or absence.

WHAT WE DO

- We thoughtfully match Consulting M.Ds with clients to ensure the right fit.
- We leverage occupational physician expertise to protect employee health and support business needs.
- We provide a cost-effective alternative to recruiting and hiring highly qualified medical directors.
